

Snow Flakes

Without doubt or debate, there are a lot of flakes in South Dakota! Snow flakes that is. As I sit at my desk writing this, I am watching new flurries of snow flakes fall from the skies, some melting on the pavement, but many simply being assimilated into the mounds of snow that are all around.

Science tells us that no two snow flakes are exactly alike. Isn't it awesome to think that God's wonder working power for creation is so limitless that even something as simple and "useless" as an individual snow flake has His stamp of creative uniqueness on it? Is it any wonder then to think how absolutely unique before God you are? When you were:

"fearfully and wonderfully made" Psalm 139:14

God made you totally unique and gave you abilities, talents, gifts, and too many other unique features to begin to list here. And the sum of all these features makes a totally unique you.

In God's knowing and loving eyes, there is no one else in all the 6 billion people on this planet exactly like you. And in a way that is only possible for God—and far greater than our understanding—there is no one else on the entire planet that He would rather have a loving relationship with than YOU.

And think of this: Because that is true, no one else can fill your place in God's heart. Just as with our children, the loving relationship of each child is unique and one cannot take the place of another.

God longs for a loving, tender, relationship with you—and no one else will do. Even millions of other Christians will not diminish God's longing and love for you. Can you think of anything else in this world that can bless you more than that knowledge?

Go to Him today. Love on Him today. Allow Him to love you back. Each and everyday, continue to develop a deeper, more loving, more intimate relationship with your Savior, Lord, and God. Because there is no greater desire in His heart than to share His love with you.
